

Terms of use

For the Citizen Science Project PolarRES, contributions will be gathered from private individuals in order to provide a social perspective on the vulnerability of the polar regions and the changes they are currently undergoing. In this regard, we plan to gather the following (data) from people who live in or have travelled to the polar regions:

- a) photographic images
- b) videos
- c) texts (short stories, poems, diary entries, ...)
- d) drawings, artistic renderings
- e) audio recordings

These contributions will be gathered by the SEA ICE PORTAL website (<https://www.meereisportal.de/>). After having been reviewed and processed for public relations / outreach purposes, the data will be used on the PolarRES website (<https://polarres.eu/>) and made available to PolarRES's partner institutes.

In order to reach as large an audience as possible and ensure maximum legal security for contributing individuals, we plan to publish the data for non-commercial purposes via a Creative Commons license. This will ensure that, when the data is reused, the creator is always cited.

<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/4.0/legalcode.de>

Further information on Creative Commons

<https://creativecommons.org/faq/#how-do-cc-licenses-operate>

In this regard, and by accepting our Terms of Use, the contributing individual grants the Alfred Wegener Institute, Helmholtz Centre for Polar and Marine Research (AWI), the non-exclusive right to use, copy, distribute and publish the uploaded data, with no geographic or content-related limitations. The purpose of granting these rights is to enable the AWI to use the data for the above-mentioned purposes with no limitations, and to allow it to transfer said rights to third parties.

The contributing individual hereby confirms that the data is not subject to any third-party rights and there are no further aspects that could adversely affect the free exercising of rights, including the resultant licensing on the part of the AWI.

The granting of rights refers to all known and unknown types of use at the time the agreement was concluded. It concerns in particular the copying and distribution of the contributed material for project-related and public relations / outreach purposes on the PolarRES website (<https://polarres.eu/>); in electronic databases and networks; and in flyers, brochures and other printed products.

The contributing individual expressly grants the AWI the right to process the data, modify it or have it processed.

The contributing individual agrees to the transfer of usage rights and hereby confirms that any further claims in this regard on their part are rendered null and void.